

TAKING ON THE

TOUGH QUESTIONS.

This journal—like few others—concentrates on the ethical and legal problems of today's medical care. Shouldn't you be reading it regularly?

Each quarter Issues in Law & Medicine devotes itself to such vital topics as assisted suicide, termination of life-sustaining treatment, and AIDS in children. Because of its sharp, specific focus, this journal is cited by at least twenty research or abstracting services, including Index Medicus/Medline and Westlaw. It has simply become too influential for you to ignore.

For a sample copy, write to the address below. To subscribe, send a check or money order—$59 for individuals, $79 for institutions (U.S. dollars, please). You'll be relieved to find a journal that faces, as you do, today's tough questions.
