Editorial
797  Equity needs to be (even) more central under the WHO Pandemic Agreement
H Schmidt

Current controversy
799  Revisiting the comparison between healthcare strikes and just war
L Browning

Clinical ethics
803  Teenager and the transplant: how the case of William Verden highlights action is needed to optimise equitable access to organs for patients with impaired decision-making
B Venter, A Ruck Keene, A J Cronin

Feature article and commentaries
808  Is there a duty to routinely reinterpret genomic variant classifications?
G Watts, A J Newson

815  Downgrades: a potential source of moral tension
A J M Oerlemans, I Feenstra, H G Yntema, M Boevisch

817  Primary duty is to communicate moment-in-time nature of genetic variant interpretation
C R Chapman

819  Moral obligation to actively reinterpret VUS and the constraint of NGS technologies
V C Welamoonwa

820  Promoting diagnostic equity: specifying genetic similarity rather than race or ethnicity
K W Snyder, D O Marschkenko

822  Professionalism or prejudice? Modelling roles, risking microaggressions
E Miller, S Tang Girdwood, A Shah, C Anyigho, E Lanphier

Original research
824  Reconsidering reinterpretation: response to commentaries
G Watts, A J Newson

826  With great power comes great vulnerability: an ethical analysis of psychedelics’ therapeutic mechanisms proposed by the REBUS hypothesis
D Villiger, M Trachts

833  Harnessing legal structures of virtue for planetary health
E Ciper

838  Machine learning models, trusted research environments and UK health data: ensuring a safe and beneficial future for AI development in healthcare
C (Xaroula) Kerassidou, M Malone, A Daly, F Tava

844  Mapping out the arguments for and against patient non-attendance fees in healthcare: an analysis of public consultation documents
J R Fystro, E Feiring

Responses
850  Whose models? Which representations? A response to Wagner
D Hardman, P Hutchinson

852  Abortion policies at the bedside: a response
B P Blackshaw

Extended essay
854  Opt-out paradigms for deceased organ donation are ethically incoherent
G M Qurashi

Ethics briefing
861  United nations climate change conference
• Health representatives as advocates
• Ethics, health and climate change
• Health, climate change and ethics – an overview
• Human rights – climate and health
R Mussell, D Hamm