Contents

Editorials
523 Care not criminalisation: reform of British abortion law is long overdue S Sheldon, J Lord
525 Ethics of speculation J Blumenthal-Barby

Clinical ethics
526 Intimate relationships in residential aged care: what factors influence staff decisions to intervene? L McAuliffe, D Fetherstonhaugh, M Syme

Current controversy
531 Using meconium to establish prenatal alcohol exposure in the UK: ethical, legal and social considerations R Arkell, E Lee

Feature article and commentaries
536 Testimonial injustice in medical machine learning G Pozzi
541 Testimonial injustice in medical machine learning: a perspective from psychiatry G Gillen
543 ‘Can I trust my patient?’ Machine Learning support for predicting patient behaviour F Funer, S Salloch
545 Ubuntu as a complementary perspective for addressing epistemic (in)justice in medical machine learning B Ferito, M De Proost
547 Epistemic virtues of harnessing rigorous machine learning systems in ethically sensitive domains T F Burns

Original research
553 Externalist argument against medical assistance in dying for psychiatric illness H H Maung
558 Ethical problems with kindness in healthcare E Jesudason
563 Dirty work: well-intentioned mental health workers cannot ameliorate harms in offshore detention J P Winters, F Owens, E Winters
569 Human equality arguments against abortion C Miller
573 Evidence, ethics and the promise of artificial intelligence in psychiatry M McGradden, K Hui, D Z Buchman

Response
580 Response to commentaries: ‘autonomy-based criticisms of the patient preference predictor’ D Wasserman, D Wendler

Extended essay
583 Analysis of the institutional landscape and proliferation of proposals for global vaccine equity for COVID-19: too many cooks or too many recipes? S Geiger, A McMahon